Mahon is rich in many diverse cultures that populated it throughout history and the towns centre clearly reflects the period of nearly a century, when it was British dominated, primarily through the architecture of its buildings. A good number of bourgeois houses and historic buildings can be found along the historic quarter of Mahon. One of them being the central Plaza de España. In addition to this, Mahon houses some wonderful cultural facilities such as the oldest opera house in Spain and the Teatro Principal, offering exciting performances from artists and musicians around the world.
